

BART Bill Effect Locally Said Disastrous

A proposed assembly bill that would have San Mateo County help pull the Bay Area Rapid Transit District out of its financial abyss could have a shattering effect on a local county-wide transit system.

John Mauro, general manager of the San Mateo County Transit District (SanTrans) said yesterday

if AB 3785, authored by Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond, passes the full assembly hearing tomorrow, the effects on setting up a local county-wide transportation system here could be disastrous.

Mauro blasted both the authors of the bill and BART.

"It is apparent that BART has an insatiable appetite for funds and this hunger will grow over the years as their costs increase," Mauro predicted.

The Knox bill proposes to extend the half-cent sales tax in San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa counties imposed to support BART, along with a rider that would divert certain transportation funds away from San Mateo and Santa Clara counties to help BART.

It had first been reported that Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, D-San Francisco, supported the measure, pointing out that commuters from both counties were responsible for a multi-million dollar BART deficit.

But this morning, a spokesman for McCarthy's office said the assemblyman was adamantly opposed to the riders attached to AB 3785 and would not support the bill unless it were amended.

The spokesman did not say whether McCarthy supported the half-cent sales tax extension for the three BART counties.

Stories that Assemblyman McCarthy is supporting (AB 3785) are not true, Jack Johnson, legislative aide to McCarthy told The Times.

According to Johnson,

McCarthy does not think the bill is appropriate inasmuch as both San Mateo and Santa Clara counties expressed their views on rapid transit — specifically BART — some years ago.

Both counties opted not to join BART.

Mauro said the bill, which was voted out of committee following brief hearings last week, is "nothing more than a back door raid" on San Mateo County transit funds.

The bill, if passed, would seriously deplete funds needed to set up and operate a 300-bus countywide transit system — something San Mateo County voters asked for some two years ago.

Besides McCarthy's statement he would oppose the bill unless it was amended, Assemblyman

Louis J. Papan, D-San Mateo, said he would "fight to kill the bill" as it now exists.

"I will work to have that language (concerning funds from San Mateo and Santa Clara counties) taken out of the bill," Papan said today.

Monday the Daly City City Council instructed its staff to mount a campaign opposing the bill.

MISSION STREET

Now — Travelling south on Mission Street at the Hillside and John Daly intersection brings back memories for the oldtimers. One particular landmark of the Mission-Hillside area is the corner building on the left.

Mission Merchants Dust Off Street Change Idea

By FRANK LAPIERRE

Back in 1908, Jim "Good Roads" Casey ran for election to the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

His platform was a simple one: good roads between San Francisco and Santa Clara counties.

After his election to the board, he waged an earnest battle, to have streets and highways built along the Peninsula that would make transportation easier and encourage settlement.

It was "Good Roads" Casey who introduced resolutions in all three counties asking that Mission Street El Camino Real — stretching from San Francisco to the Mexican border — be designated a state highway.

The fight for this was long and sometimes bitter.

Now, after more than 75 years, a handful of businessmen want to erase the name of Mission Street in Daly City and change it to El Camino Real (The Kings Highway) in an effort to make it conform with the rest of the state.

At a recent meeting on the subject, Daly City businessman George Kirchhubel told of the history associated with Mission Street and of its many unique characteristics.

Other oldtime Daly City businessmen can recall the glory that was once Mission Street.

They tell of the people who paraded along Mission Street in bygone days to attend world championship boxing matches.

Of the national and international leaders who rode through their city along the length of Mission Street.

And of the famous and near-famous who travelled the street for the final time en route to the Colma cemeteries.

"Ask anyone where Mission Street in Daly City is and they'll tell you a story about this well-known road right away," Kirchhubel told the City Fathers recently.

He was right. No other street in the county, perhaps the entire state, is as well-known as Mission Street.

Mission Street is unique. Perhaps because it doesn't have a "mission" on it.

The San Francisco Mission — Mission Dolores — in on Dolores Street.

However, there once was a lot of praying along Mission Street in Daly City.

People prayed they would get rich quick in one of the myriad gambling joints along Mission Street. Others prayed their contender would win his exhibition of fisticuffs.

Gradually, Mission Street became a street for small businesses.

The shops eventually stretched from San Francisco's waterfront through Daly City, 12 miles away.

Mission Street wasn't always the smooth-surfaced roadway it is today.

So bad were the roads between San Francisco and San Bruno that Supervisor Casey, in 1910, sponsored a gala road excursion from Daly City by the San Francisco Motor Club to the Tanforan Race Track, with the proceeds earmarked for road improvements in the North County.

Back in 1910, such a trip was considered an adventure.

Automobile drivers hailed the 10 mile road "race" as a chance to show off their driving skills.

In 1913, county voters passed a $1.25 million bond issue.

With matching funds from the State, several major road projects were completed, including improvement of School Street (which some people also want to change the name of), and an east-west link between Daly City and the coastline.

The editor of the Colma Record in 1915 wrote that any person who had been out of town for the seven years wouldn't recognize the growing Mission Street area on their return.

The fight for better roads started by "Good Roads" Casey still is being waged today by the council and supervisors — with the support of a majority of residents.

Mission Street in Daly City has been recognized as the backbone of Daly City business for the better part of a century.

As the city grew and headed toward incorporation, businesses flourished along Mission Street.

The "Mission Street Tract," according to 1908 newspaper advertisements, was only 5 cents away by street car (BART takes twice as long today).

These ads recommended folks move south into Daly City's Mission Tract. "The See MERCHANTS, Page 2

DC Costs May Rise If Dump Pact Is Cancelled

A public hearing on proposed higher garbage rates for Daly City is not scheduled to be held until May 10, but some city council members expressed their views on the issue Monday.

City Atty. Albert Polonsky cautioned the councilmen to refrain from discussing the rates until after the public hearing, noting that such discussion might compromise the council's later decision on the matter.

However, Councilman William Schumacher insisted on bringing up the council's decision of some ten months ago warning Pacifica that after July 1, 1976 — less than two months from today — that city probably will have to take its garbage elsewhere.

Schumacher feels cancellation of Pacifica's dumping agreement will cost Daly City.

Pacifica has been paying an estimated $200,000 annually to dump garbage at the Mussel Rock dump site.

Schumacher said that by cutting off the Pacifica their investigation of the real murder case — by creating false leads.

For example, The latest rumor that reared through the huge shopping center complex at brush fire speed is the story of a young woman who was murdered while using a public telephone at the center.

In fact, the woman in question was using a public telephone to call a friend when a young man allegedly approached her and matter-of-factly informed her "Get off the phone I want to molest you."

The startled woman dropped the phone, ran into a nearby store and alerted security guards.

Daly City police were called on the man was arrested — without a struggle.

There have been other, even more exaggerated stories — of women being attacked as they got into their cars after a day of shopping at a mentally-retarded woman armed with a knife being arrested in the rear seat of a car waiting for its owner to return from shopping, and, if you can believe this one, a story of a woman raped and slashed inside the center's shopping mall while window shopping.

"Every one of these is completely untrue," Hansen said.

Hansen said another "ridiculous story" is the one about convicted slayer Richard Post (who murdered a young woman employee of the center last year) being re-arrested while attacking another woman at the center recently.

Post is in prison and will undoubtedly remain there for some years, police continued.

How or why these silly rumors start is anybody's guess. But I wish they'd stop," Hansen said.

Police are still searching for leads to the identity of the slayer of Denise Lampe found inside her car in late March.

Despite the fact she was apparently stabbed to death while hundreds of shoppers passed by, there have been no witnesses, police said.

But the arguments failed to sway Schumacher, who insisted that whatever happens to Pacifica in connection with the Mussel Rock dump "is part and parcel of a proposed (collection) increase for Daly City residents."

On reconsidering the notice of termination to Pacifica prompted Polonsky to comment "Our problems (at the dump) are our problems and not Pacifica's."

Pacifica's apparent lack of concern in the matter was noted by newly-elected Councilman Al Teglia.

"Unless Pacifica is concerned, I don't think we should worry about it (the termination)," Teglia said.

Councilman McRobert Stewart, a member of the county's Solid Waste Advisory Committee, agreed with Teglia.

The decision to close the door on Pacifica was for the protection of Daly City residents," Stewart said. "I would recommend that Pacifica vigorously pursue (an alternate) dump site study."

Recently, a study conducted by KCA Associates and a soils analyst was made to determine the lifespan of the dump.

The study, which included borings, was considered "inconclusive," a city hall spokesman said.

Dissension Brews In Demo Caucus

By RICK SULLIVAN

Dissension is brewing within the ranks of active San Mateo County Democrats over the way the recent caucuses were conducted to elect delegates to the national convention. In fact, one campaign chairman for a presidential candidate has resigned because of "violations of a candidate's committee and managers."

The Times has learned that

Stuart Moldaw of Atherton was appointed by the Morris Udall campaign steering committee to be a delegate from a congressional district in which he does not reside. That appointment bumped a delegate elected at the Udall caucus and moved the chairman of the Udall campaign in this county, George Cockshott, to resign.

Congressman Leo Ryan, was named by the Jimmy Carter campaign steering committee to head the list of convention delegates from the 11th congressional district even though he received the least amount of votes at the Carter caucus.

Miramontes, in turn filed a claim with the city that he was hit on the head and face with a flashlight, knocked to the ground and beaten and kicked by the officers.

That claim has not yet been filed in court. (See VERSIONS, Page 2)

On April 11, Palm Sunday, caucuses for each Democratic candidate on the June 8 primary ballot were held in each of the state's 43 congressional districts.

That Sunday at the Udall caucus in the 11th congressional district, comprising most of San Mateo County, 23 Democrats assembled to elect five delegates and five alternates to represent their candidate at the national convention.

According to Cockshott, Democrats cast secret ballots and elected Marie Davis, Ed Bernal, Florence Snyder, Betty Granberg and Richard O'Malley to be the five delegates.

However, when the formal delegate list was sent to the California Secretary of State, it was learned that the Udall campaign steering committee had replaced O'Malley with Moldaw.

According to the County Registrar of Voters Office, Moldaw is a registered voter in the 12th congressional district, living at 49 Faxon, Atherton. And according to the County Clerk's Office, Moldaw did not register to be a candidate for a delegate in the Udall caucus in the 11th district.

Charleton Holland of the State Attorney General's Office in San Francisco told The Times Monday that state law provides "A candidate for delegate shall North County residents may lose some of their police protection and related services if the Board of Supervisors doesn't take over the detention facility at Daly City Police Department, according to four police chiefs.

Since Jan. 1, 1975, a federal grant has enabled San Bruno, South San Francisco and Pacifica police officers to transport prisoners to the Daly City jail where they are detained until arraignment or release.

However, that grant for more than $200,000 will terminate on Dec. 31 and the police chiefs are starting to panic.

In fact, Daly City Police Chief David Hansen will present a report to the North County Council of Cities Thursday night in hopes that it will urge the supervisors to take action.

If San Bruno, Pacifica and South San Francisco police officers must transport every prisoner to the county jail in Redwood City they predict increased costs and cutbacks on the time officers will spend patrolling streets in their own cities.

Chief Hansen said more than 8,500 persons have been processed at the North County Detention Facility since January 1975.

"This large volume of booking indicates an obvious need for a permanent jail facility in the North County area," Hansen said.

The situation for each police department is different.

South San Francisco's jail was closed down by the State Department of Corrections in July, 1974.

Until 1975, Pacifica

transported its prisoners 20 miles away to the county jail.

San Bruno Police Department has its own jail but the Daly City facility has allowed for more officer time in the field as well as a financial savings.

Daly City Assistant Police Chief Richard Sims said his city could continue to run the facility as its own jail. However, the city wants out of the jail business.

"The issue is fair treatment," said Sims. South County cities take their prisoners directly to the county supported jail. The four North County chiefs want similar privileges in their own neighborhoods.

"The experiment was to prove the feasibility of a detention facility operated by four cities," Sims said. The jail, he said, saved the officers in the four cities 10,000 patrol hours in 1975 alone.

South San Francisco Police Chief James Datzman has estimated it will cost his city at least $70,000 a year to transport its prisoners to Redwood City. The transportation cost is included in the city's proposed 1976-77 budget.

There would be additional costs, he said, including the services of an attorney. Presently, the Daly City attorney donates his team to the four cities to cover legal problems at the jail.

Datzman said the detention facility Board of Governors — which includes the four chiefs — favors the San Mateo County Sheriff's Department taking over a North County facility.

The ideal situation, Datz-man said, is for the State Department of Corrections to take over the facility.

reside in the congressional district from which he or she wishes to be chosen as a delegate.

Holland explained further that state law allows presidential candidate steering committees to override caucus-elected delegates to the national convention.

He did say, however, that the appointment of a delegate to serve in a district in which he does not reside "seems to be inconsistent with the law."

After learning that O'Malley had been replaced by Moldaw, Cockshott wrote a personal letter of resignation to Udall.

Cockshott said he was especially upset because Moldaw is a member of the steering committee which eliminated O'Malley as a delegate.

In other words, Moldaw appointed himself and that upsets me," said Cockshott.

Kathleen Phillips of the Udall campaign headquarters in San Francisco denied that Moldaw is a steering committee member, but did acknowledge that he worked very closely with the committee raising funds.

She explained that the steering committee felt that Moldaw should be a delegate since he had worked hard and spent a lot of time on the Udall campaign.

The committee, she said, named him to be a delegate from the 11th district "because the committee thought that if he worked in the 11th district then he could serve as a delegate in the same district."

Moldaw works in Burlingame, which is in the 11th district.

He was out of town and unavailable for comment Monday.

In his letter of resignation to Udall dated April 28, Cockshott stated, "Today I have resigned from your campaign in protest to the violation of those principles by your Cal State Committee in their delegate selection for your 11th CD (Congressional district)."

"We realize," Cockshott continued in the letter, "that he (Moldaw) is a heavy contributor to your campaign. But such should not be allowed to ignore the established procedures of registering to be a candidate and being elected. This (election procedure) is what your (election) reform is all about."

"I am resigning," he concluded, "primarily to be true to my own value of political principles and to demonstrate the necessity of individuals in a campaign to stand up against such violations of a candidate's committee and managers."

Questioned last Friday, O'Malley said he was not upset because he had been replaced by a delegate, stating, "This is clearly the option of a presidential candidate." However, he said, he was angered over a selection of a delegate "who doesn't even reside in the 11th district."

"It seems to be politics as usual," said Cockshott. "The big money and the big politicians still run the show."

That sentiment was echoed by Audrey Ohlson. She placed second in the Jimmy Carter delegate caucus, but was replaced by Congressman Leo Ryan. Ryan had registered to be a candidate for delegate in his own district, but he placed last at the balloting at the caucus. Ryan, who did not attend the caucus, received eight votes. Ohlson tallied 31 votes behind first-place Donna Patterson.

In the final delegate list sent to the Secretary of State, Ryan was named the number one delegate by the Carter campaign steering committee.

Asked to explain why Ryan had replaced Mrs. Ohlson, Joe Holsinger, Ryan's aide, replied, "It was the steering committee's feeling that because of the contributions Mr. Ryan has made to the Carter campaign, he should be included as a delegate."

"Mr. Ryan," he added, "endorsed the candidacy of Jimmy Carter before the New Hampshire primary and deserved to be a delegate."

Holsinger said that after the Carter caucus, the candidate's seven-member state steering committee reviewed the list of delegates from the 11th district and decided that Ryan would be more beneficial to the Carter campaign than Mrs. Ohlson.

"We looked at who could help Carter the most out of the delegates selected and decided that Leo would do better than Mrs. Ohlson. We did what we thought was best for the Carter campaign."

Holsinger continued, "There are a lot of voters who are swayed by the judgement of politicians and they are inclined to follow their advice."

Holsinger is the deputy state director of the Carter campaign.

Mrs. Ohlson remarked, "I just am upset that the democratic process has been disregarded."

Millbrae Councilman Art Lepore, who was elected a delegate at the Frank Church for President caucus and who had been replaced by another Democrat and then somehow reinstated, also complained about how the caucuses were handled.

"We keep talking about getting everybody involved in the (political) process, but we don't really do it."

"Here people are told to attend caucuses to elect delegates and a steering committee can just override the vote. If that's going to continue to be the case, then why should we have caucuses?"

"I think the day should be over when people sit in judgment about who can contribute what to a campaign," said Lepore.

Gale Douglas, an aide to State Senator Alfred Alquist, who recently authored the legislation governing democratic caucus procedures, said he had heard that campaign steering committees throughout the state "were getting a lot of flack from Democrats who had been elected at caucuses and then replaced."

Douglas said that the senator's bill was "designed to make candidates think very carefully before replacing anyone selected by the caucus procedure with someone else because of the flack that would inevitably come up."

man said, would be a jail at the North County courthouse, 1050 Mission Road. The county jail is housed in the county courthouse building in Redwood City.

He said, however, that would be a long-term solution and construction — if the Board of Supervisors approved — would take several years.

In the meantime, the preferred short-term solution would be having the sheriff operate the Daly City facility.

"That is what the Board of Governors would like to see take place," Datzman said.

Other less favorable solutions the county might consider, Datzman said, include the county providing the cities with money to run the jail themselves, the Sheriff's Department establishing trailers at the North County courthouse to hold prisoners until their court appearances, and an on-call sheriff's transportation unit that would pick the prisoners up in each city and transport them to Redwood City.

He said it would cost South San Francisco at least $80,000 to bring its own jail up to useable condition through remodeling and an additional $80,000 a year for staffing.

Pacificia Police Chief Mel Nelson said 2,042 hours of officer time on Pacifica streets would be lost if the officers were forced to escort prisoners to Redwood City.

The impact, he said, would be particularly great on officer response time. He estimates response to calls would increase 30 to 60 seconds.

The effect would be crucial, especially on emergency calls," he said.

Arrests in his city, he said, have increased since the Daly City facility was established — mostly because officers have more time in the field than when they were taking trips to Redwood City two years ago.

It is regrettable, he said, that the county didn't think of this years ago.

"When the county went to the expense of building the North County courthouse, they should have put in a detention facility at that time," he said.

San Bruno Police Chief Russell Cunningham said he has not estimated the increased cost of transporting to Redwood City. San Bruno, he said, could reopen its jail to serve its own prisoners but that would mean reestablishing the process of booking, fingerprinting, photographing, searching and feeding prisoners at a time when the city can least afford it.

"We just want to get out of the jail business," the chief said.

George Riley, executive assistant to the county manager, said a consultant team has been studying many county capital improvement needs for six months.

"One big part of the report is in the area of corrections," Riley said.

The report will be presented in June to the supervisors and will include a 20-year projection of future correctional needs and five alternatives for handling prisoner detention in the North County.

"The board will probably take several months to hear discussions on the various alternatives," Riley said.

The incident began when a youth allegedly kicked in a window of a store at 1059 El Camino Real and took two bottles of vodka.

A witness followed the youth and informed police. Toscano and Peters were directed to the Miramontes residence.

Toscano testified that only after repeated warnings to Miramontes that he was in the way, did Toscano push him away.

Toscano said he hit Miramontes with a flashlight — but only after he saw he was losing control of the situation.

Both officers testified that Miramontes grabbed their arms before they attempted to restrain him.

"When Miramontes grabbed hold of the officers when they were attempting to arrest his son, he was guilty of all the offenses," argued Deputy District Atty. Dale Hahn.

Miramontes testified he never touched Officer Toscano.

He said he was sitting in his house when his daughter said, police were arresting her brother.

He went outside, he said, and asked the officers twice why they were arresting his son and told them to read him his legal rights.

"Officer Toscano turned around and immediately pushed me backwards," he said. Then, he said, he was hit across the face with an object (the flashlight) and fell backwards.

He testified that one of the officers was choking him.

His attorney, Lewis

Yapp of San Francisco, argued that Miramontes was "a concerned parent wondering what's going on — why are they arresting my son."

Yapp said Toscano overacted after hitting Miramontes with the flashlight and grabbing his throat, he had to justify what he had done. That, he said, was why charges were filed against Miramontes.

"He was the one who was hurt," Yapp said of his client.

Both Toscano and Miramontes were treated for injuries after the incident.

Restaurant Approved for Complex in Westborough

A midwestern-style restaurant in the Westborough section of South San Francisco, expected to bring in $500,000 a year, has been approved by the Planning Commission.

However, it took applicant Joseph Haggarty 1 1/2 hours to convince the commission last week that the restaurant will not conflict with offices already on the property at 3560 Callan Blvd. and that parking will be sufficient.

The commission also questioned whether Haggarty misled the commission when he applied for the original use permit for the offices on that property a year ago.

Haggarty plans that James Totah San South San Francisco will operate a restaurant seating 178 persons on the property from 5 p.m.-2 a.m. It will be open seven nights a week.

The commission stipulated in its approval that the restaurant is never to operate at the same time as the offices on the property. There already are 61 parking spaces for the offices, and the restaurant, which it is estimated will need 60 parking spaces of its own, must share those spaces.

Deborah Carson, president of the West Park Improvement Association, pointed out to the commission potential conflicts between the operation of Haggarty's offices and the restaurant.

The office complex now houses Haggarty's real estate firm and an insurance company. Mrs. Carson said real estate businesses commonly operate on Sunday and in the evening hours.

She also questioned whether the proximity of Westborough Junior High School might be a problem in the restaurant's application for a liquor license.

"We were all led to believe that he was going to have an office complex there," Mrs. Carson said.

She said that when Haggarty's original use permit was granted, he claimed there were tenants waiting in the wings for office space. A third building still is planned for the site.

"I am wondering if down the road there is going to be a need for a third building," she said.

Haggarty said he never intended a restaurant to be built on the property when he received his use permit. Totah approached him about the availability of the property because of the view and location.

He also said that his real estate business and the insurance company usually have a few persons in the offices after 5 p.m. but that there should be no substantial conflict.

The restaurant, he said, probably won't be in full operation until 6 or 6:30 p.m. Real estate and insurance office workers are gone by that time.

He said he has made it quite clear to Totah that he will serve dinners only — no luncheons or banquets before 5 p.m.

"That's what he's got to live with," Haggarty said. He also said the nearby school will not conflict with liquor licensing regulations.

It will not be economically feasible, he said, for him to abandon plans for a third building. He is negotiating with a potential tenant but said only that the business is a form of therapy associated with the medical profession.

Several commissioners were hesitant about the project.

Commissioner Joe Mathewson questioned the integrity of Haggarty originally claiming that office space was sorely needed and then showing up with plans for a restaurant.

Commissioner Eugene Mullin said that a restaurant — in concept — is beneficial in the city, but the auto traffic that might be generated and the potential conflict with the offices is a problem.

Haggarty failed to convince only Mathewson, who voted against the project.

Totah said the restaurant will be a family-style operation featuring "very high quality food" cooked by himself and his brother.

CANHC To Meet

CANHC members from San Mateo county will share in a panel program May 5 that will deal with the Sedgwick Act provisions for special education.

With audience participation provided, the panel will open at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, at West Coast Federal, 210 Primrose in Burlingame.

The area chapter of the California Association for Neurologically Handicapped Children will target on a current state educational directive to local schools. Panel Chairman Joseph Giordano, Hillsborough attorney, will present data on the Sedgwick Act's provisions for funding private school instruction for the educationally handicapped, and the current directive's apparent contradictions.

fastest growing district of the city.

Lots were being gobbled up for $300 — $50 down and a small monthly payment, with no interest and no taxes, real estate brochures proclaimed.

There are numerous interesting stories about Mission Street.

Kirchhubel alone must know several dozen, about the fights, the backroom politics that shaped the city, the fight for incorporation that passed by a single vote, the gambling and the transformation of the farms and dairy ranches of the city into a prosperous community.

The "21" line to Holy Cross Cemetery from San Francisco; the Hotel Brayton with its $1.50 a day rates; the Ocean Shore Railroad which ran from 12th and Mission in San Francisco through Daly City and down the coast.

"Battling" Nelson versus Jimmy Britt's famous fight at Mission and School streets; the Grandview Nickelodeon at the Top of the Hill; Knowles Pond; and the Rock Quarry at the corner of Hillside and Mission.

These are but a few of the memories that were a part of Daly City's Mission Street.

Now, they are gone.

The question facing the City Council today is whether Mission Street itself will join these landmarks in obscurity.

Epic Struggle with Social Security Agency

By JANET PARKER

Monroe Barnett says there's no justice in this country.

If he had known when he was born what he knows today, he says he would have killed himself.

Barnett, a terminal cancer patient residing in Pacifica, has been struggling with the United States Social Security Administration.

For nearly three years, he's been trying to get what he claims is rightly his — Social Security payments for periods of extended unemployment because of illness.

Instead, Barnett was told in numerous letters that he owes the Social Security system $4,647.

"I feel sorry for the rest of the people in the country who don't realize what's going on," Barnett said. "By the time they wake up and realize what's happening like I did, it's too late. I finally just gave up."

The stack of papers on the coffee table representing three years of correspondence with Social Security officials, legislators and even President Ford, is worthless, he said. In fact, he said, when he thumbs through them and thinks about the injustice of it all, he gets more nervous.

"It puts such a mental strain on me. Everytime I pick up those papers I get sick," Barnett said.

The chain of mixed-up events began in 1970 when Barnett — a driver for Pacific Motor Trucking for 20 years — was out of work for about 15 months because of calcium deposits on his arms. At that time, he was receiving $183.40 a month in Social Security payments.

He said he notified the Social Security Administration by phone that he was returning to work in mid-1971 and was assured that the information would be recorded. He received payments for three more months.

He was sick again in February 1972 and began receiving Social Security payments near the end of the year for $250.60.

In January 1973, still ill, he went back to work and since he wasn't sure if he was staying, he was entitled to collect Social Security up to nine months, which he did.

However, in January 1974, he learned he had cancer and probably would not return to work. In a letter dated Aug. 30, 1974, the Social Security Administration told him his benefits were terminated. They said he owed $4,674 in Social Security overpayments.

The administrator claimed that in 1971, Barnett failed to notify the Social Security office that he had returned to work although he is certain he did notify them.

After many letters, his payments suddenly resumed on March 6, 1975. He received four months' back pay. Barnett assumed everything was straightened out and that payments would resume while he was undergoing radiation therapy.

"But that was the end of that," he said. The payments stopped as suddenly as they had begun.

Then there was a letter on Oct. 17, 1975. It said he would begin receiving checks "which will include all benefits due you through September 1975. After that, a check for $317.10 will be sent to you each month."

A note, however, attached at the bottom said the Social Security Administration had been withholding his payments from February 1974 to August 1975 to reduce the $4,674 "overpayment" to $198.50.

Another letter on April 2 stated that the administration will withhold $20 a month for nine months and $18.10 the tenth month to get the $19.50 they say he still owes.

Barnett complains that after 13 years in the service, 20 years in private employment, "I'm entitled to nothing."

He thinks the confusion over his case happened because a Social Security employee was looking at someone else's file. If it is true that he made a mistake, he wants to know why his payments resumed in full for a four-month period.

"That was admitting their mistake," he said.

And even if he never did notify the office that he had returned to work, he says he should only be required to return the money he received during the months he was working.

By Congressional order, the Social Security office is not permitted to discuss details of a specific case. However, Contact Representative Rita Palmer in San Francisco said Barnett is known to that office and that his case is "congressional."

Apparently Congressman Leo Ryan, D-San Mateo, or one of the other legislators Barnett contacted had referred the problem to Social Security administrators.

"We couldn't say at this time if he owes anything but action has been taken," Mrs. Palmer said.

A Social Security recipient, she said, may notify the administration by phone or by letter that he or she has returned to work. Barnett said he phoned the office.

Mrs. Palmer also said if it is determined payments should have been made to Barnett all along, the full benefits could be returned to him.

"If he has money coming, they will give it to him," she said.

His doctors have given him a few years at the most to live. He says if he could have the back payments he believes he's entitled to, it would provide him with the cushion he needs to see him from day to day.

Right now, he's living with a friend, his wife and their six children in Pacifica.

Despite his declining health, he's considering an offer by his old boss to return to work at a desk job so he can get a little money ahead.

Prison, Fines for 11 Bookies

Seven local men who were among 11 convicted in U.S. District Court in San Francisco of operating a bookie ring on the Peninsula received combined sentences Friday of more than seven years in jail and $222,250 in fines.

The highest penalty was against Charles F. Leahy, 51, of South San Francisco, who Judge Robert Schnecke sentenced to three years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

The prosecutor, John Emerson, said that while the ring was operating in 1971 and 1972, it handled gross bets of easily as much as $100,000 a week. It was operated in San Francisco, Burlingame, South San Francisco, Menlo Park and Daly City, the government claimed.

The other local men who were sentenced by Judge Schnecke and their sentences are:

Attilio Joe Spagnuolo, 46, of Millbrae, two years and $3,000; Howard A. Swan, 60, of South San Francisco, one year and $3,000; Kenneth Whiteman, 64, of Daly City, six months and $750.

Harvey L. Ubhoff, 34, of Belmont, $3,000; Reginald Sutter, 45, of San Mateo, four months and $2,500; and Thomas G. Guglielmi, 43, of Millbrae, four months.

Three San Franciscans were also sentenced. They are Gloria Spagnuolo, 46, $1,500; Lurie Rossetti, 23, $750; and Raymond Z. Cohn, 35, $5,000.

A Sunnyvale man, Stephen Cosenza, 42, received probation and a $3,500 fine.

S.F. Symphony Asks For Ticket Donation

The San Francisco Symphony Association is encouraging persons holding unused tickets for strike-cancelled concerts to return them as tax-deductible gifts to the Symphony, rather than requesting refunds.

The financial effect of the ongoing city employees' strike has had a disastrous effect upon the San Francisco Symphony, having caused a loss of more than $100 thousand in anticipated income, and, consequently, an enormous increase in the annual deficit. For the first time in its history, the San Francisco Symphony Association is faced with the possibility of having an annual deficit in excess of $1 million.

Talk on Rockefeller Collection Slated

The Department of Recreation, Parks & Maintenance, in cooperation with the John D. Rockefeller

American Art Collection. An exhibit of 106 works from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller III is currently on view at the M. H. de Young Museum in San Francisco. It is one of the most important collections of American art still in private hands.

The exhibition will be the first public viewing of the collection. Many of the works had been passed down through generations of the families that originally commissioned them. It includes major works by the best known American artists such as John Singeton Copley, Thomas Eakins, Winslow Homer, Andrew Wyeth, and others. Paintings, drawings, watercolors, and sculpture have been selected from the collection put together in the last decade by Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller III.

To prepare Daly City residents to view the exhibit, an especially trained lecturer will present a slide show-talk at 7:30 p.m. May 12 in the Serramonte Library. The library is in Gellert Park between Callan and Gellert Boulevards on Wembley Drive.

County Residents Urged to Conserve Water

An urgent appeal was issued today to every Peninsula residential and institutional user of water to conserve it to a maximum degree in view of the mounting crisis of the San Francisco city workers strike, now in its fourth week.

Of primary importance is the need to water during night hours when the system is not in peak use and to limit that usage as far as possible.

The action was taken by the Peninsula Water Agency which met in an emergency session at 7:30 a.m. today at the call of Chairman Edward Morey, who also heads the Belmont Water District. It was held at the Lyons Restaurant in San Mateo.

The situation was described by Jephtha A.

Wade, Jr., vice president and chief engineer of the California Water Service Co. He said, while there is a six months' supply in various Bay Area reservoirs, it is imperative to conserve an emergency supply in the event of a serious fire or other disaster.

And concern was expressed that local sympathizers with San Francisco strikers could consider acts of sabotage in this area, hence specific data on nerve points in the Hetch-Hetchy and California Water System were not touched upon.

Action in calling on the public to conserve water and to give Chairman Morey freedom in seeking an immediate court injunction should any crisis occur was unanimously approved.

San Mateo Councilman John F. Condon, agency member, made the motion that, "The chair be authorized to seek necessary court action to obtain relief as needed without coming back to this body for approval."

Morey said he would make an immediate report and seek "blessing" of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors today.

Nat Landes of Woodside and Redwood City Mayor Margaret Leipzig also urged and were supported by their colleagues that the board of supervisors also call attention of state legislators to the problem and seek aid in Sacramento.

The reason for the water crisis now particularly affecting Brisbane, San Carlos, Belmont, South San Francisco and other areas is the result of strikers who operate the big San Francisco powerhouse at the Shafter-Hess Dam in Yosemite. They turned off water valves generating electricity for San Francisco to force an economic impact on the city. It has to buy power from P. G. & E.

Though the San Francisco Labor Council agreed that water could be turned on, though not to generate electricity, the San Francisco workers who live in San Francisco owned houses in Yosemite, refused to let anyone come near the powerhouse.

Councilman John Condon and Public Works Director Robert Bezzant immediately left the meeting to confer with City Manager John C. Lilly. All city water-using facilities, parks, the golf course and other areas, will only use water at night, Mayor John J. Murray immediately issued that order.

Wade asked that all water users do the same thing to conserve and to watch their dripping faucets. He said watering at night, and watering only enough to keep plants and trees alive, will relieve the pressure on the system.

He said the call for conservation had to be issued in view of the advent of warm weather and the sharply rising use of water.

Wade said he didn't want to push any panic buttons, but it was imperative to get public cooperation and that of all government agencies, including schools.

With the shutdown of Hetch-Hetchy water into pipelines the capacity has dropped from 160 to 40 million gallons a day, and advent of warm weather will in many areas double and triple usage, hence the problem.

County Transit Budget Adopted

Directors of the San Mateo County Transit District Wednesday night approved a five-year capital improvement budget of $37,539,000 and an operating budget of $6,756,000 for the coming fiscal year.

The approval at the Menlo Park City Council Chambers came without a dissenting vote.

And, John T. Mauro, general manager, predicted the district will be set up and operated at no cost to local taxpayers.

Of the five-year projected budget, he reported, $7.2 million will come from federal highway monies, $1,315,000 from federal aid for operational purposes, another $14 to $21 million from other federal sources, $5,666,755 from a federal Transit Development Act, $3.8 million from state gas taxes, more from a 1 cent sales tax levied by the state for public transportation, and the remainder from fares.

He admitted that the budget is based on the assumption that ridership will grow in response to service. Wages are based on those now paid by the ServCar Corp.

There is the problem of drivers and mechanics going to court every year, he said.

The $6,756,000 budget for the coming year estimates fare revenue at $1,200,000, a $1,700,000 federal grant, and $3,800,000 from state funds.

Wages will take up about 50 per cent of the budget, according to Mauro, who said he expects 277 positions to be phased in during the coming 12 months, including 190 drivers and 33 maintenance employees. He told directors that the administration division, including clerical help, will take up only 3.6 per cent of the budget.

Director C. Robert

Payne, however, warned that it was the first time the staff had put together a budget, and "many unseen things may happen. It may be necessary to make adjustments."

Mauro said the district will be operating "on the line" and warned any requests for additional services will have to be turned down.

During the first year of operation, Mauro said it is planned to buy 74 buses, 1,500 bus stop signs, 100 transfer point signs, 100 passenger shelters and six "pool autos" for administrative personnel.

Negotiations are underway for leases of maintenance yards in South San Francisco and Redwood City, he said.

Current plans call for the assimilation of bus systems in Belmont, Brisbane, Burlingame, Foster City, Pacifica and San Carlos into the district by July 1. San Bruno will be starting from scratch on July 3, while it is planned to take over Millbrae's municipal system on Sept. 1. The ServCar Co. will continue to operate systems in Menlo Park, Redwood City, San Mateo and South San Francisco under contract, which will give the district time to evaluate the advantages and disadvantages publicly operated system as opposed to a privately operated company.

Armand Cohn, president of ServCar maintained that the privately operated system can still be run more economically.

Director Paul Cowgill was the only one to vote against a salary ordinance, charging that he had made a comparison with other districts operating more buses and had found administrative salaries were lower.

Robert Jone answered that buses shouldn't be counted as a basis for setting salaries as this would only encourage top executives to purchase more buses "to create their own empire."

Mauro said he had conferred earlier in the day with Greyhound officials to oppose their abandonment of service to the Coastside. He said local officials had agreed to confer with company executives in Phoenix, although a staff meeting is being held today to determine what to do if the bus line drops the service.

Payne said he would like to keep Greyhound "as a viable alternative to our own express routes."

The matter of utilizing the Southern Pacific as a rapid transit system was again discussed, and district directors voted unanimously to oppose the railroad's request for a 111 per cent fare increase now before the State Public Utilities Commission.

Good morning, good cooks. Most good cooks have a favorite meatloaf recipe, but we are always ready to try a new one. Especially one that is as tasty and eye-appealing as this one.

Igloo Meat Loaf is baked in the shape of an igloo, frosted with mashed potatoes in which you make indentations with a knife to form the ice blocks.

IGLOO MEAT LOAF

- 2 lbs. ground beef
- 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
- 6 Tbsp. instant minced onion
- 1 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 1 1/2 cups evaporated milk

In a bowl lightly mix the ground beef, bread crumbs, minced onion (it's important to use the instant minced onion as it makes a finer meatloaf, not so likely to tear when you slice it), salt, pepper and milk. Mix until blended. Pack firmly into a 1 1/2 quart bowl; turn out of bowl onto baking pan.

Bake in 325-degree oven for 1 hour 15 minutes to 1 hour 30 minutes.

POTATO FROSTING

- 1 1/2 cups water
- 2 3 cup evaporated milk
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 Tbsp. butter
- 1 pkg. (3 1/2 oz.) instant mashed potatoes
- Cheddar cheese slices

In a 1 1/2 quart saucepan, combine the water, evaporated milk, salt and butter; bring just to boiling. Remove from heat; with whip or fork, stir in the potatoes. Whip briskly.

Frost the loaf with potato mixture. Return to oven and bake 15 minutes longer then place the cheddar cheese slices on igloo and bake until cheese just begins to melt. Six to eight servings.

I found this meatloaf reheats nicely. Cover with foil and bake in 325-degree oven until heated through.

p.m. Silent auctions for unusual books will be from noon to 1 p.m. each day.

A bicentennial section will be a feature of this year's event. Included in the fiction and non-fiction books selected for this section are a number of Zane Grey books.

St. Clair Favors Jobs Tax Credit

A tax credit for any California business increasing its employment rolls was proposed recently as the solution to California's unemployment crisis by Bob St. Clair, candidate for the State Senate special election May 11.

"The snowball effect of this plan," St. Clair said, "comes from the increase of monies the newly employed will have to buy more consumer goods and the addition to tax revenues from their wages."

"The result will be fewer state expenditures for unemployment and welfare costs, which will more than offset the financial break the state will give the businesses increasing employment. The taxpayer and the business community both benefit and the many now unemployed will have the choice of a meaningful job."

St. Clair, a graduate of the University of Tulsa with a degree in business administration, has been in business in both the San Mateo and San Francisco portions of the district for 19 years.

BART Station To Open

The official public opening of the San Francisco Embarcadero BART station will take place May 27, it was announced today by BART president Elmer B. Cooper.

The Embarcadero Station, located on Market Street between Beale and Spear Streets, is a three-level underground structure with six entrances on Market Street. The new transit facility will house both the new Muni Metro underground trolley system, scheduled to begin service in 1978, and BART. The Embarcadero station was not part of the original 33-station BART system as planned in 1962. However, as plans for the development of lower Market Street emerged, the need for public rapid transit access was considered evident.

In 1969, two agreements between BART and the City of San Francisco were executed, allocating $1 million, provided by the city, to permit station design.

In 1971, additional funding, raised through a San Francisco bond issue and modifications of the Muni Metro design was secured to begin construction of the $30 million transit station. Federal assistance in the amount of approximately $11 million contributed to the overall cost.

The City of San Francisco, BART and local civic and business organizations are presently planning a celebration to mark the Embarcadero Station opening. The event will include a public open house in the station and surrounding commercial area.

New Snoopy
At Little Fox

There has been a change of guard at the Little Fox Theater. Don Potter is no longer the guru of public morals and department of philosophy among the Charles Schulz menagerie. He has gone to the great dog kennel in Philadelphia where the musical "Snoopy" will open this month.

Tommy Breslin, last seen in San Francisco as Sylvester, the dizzy freshman in "Good News" with Alice Faye and John Payne has taken up residence atop the chalet-style dog house that dominates the stage. The musical is now in its seventh month in San Francisco.

"My concept of Snoopy is different than Don's. He was very helpful with the staging before he left but I see Snoopy as a philosopher, a daydreamer who can do anything he wants. That's why he's so popular with the young people.

TOMMY BRESLIN
The New Snoopy

But his first professional contact with San Francisco audiences came many years ago when he appeared in 1969 with Joel Grey in "George M" for the Civic Light Opera.

He doesn't want to go through life playing 17 year olds just because he looks young or to follow in Joel Grey's footsteps because he's small and can sing and dance. He played the role that Grey created of the master of ceremonies in a summer tour of "Cabaret."

"I'm five-foot-six and Joel is only five-foot-four. So we're not really the same."

For the past year and a half, he's been doing a nightclub act that involves singing, dancing and writing his own material. When he was appearing as the juvenile (in this case the only one in the cast under 60 years of age) in "70 Girls 70," which was about an old peoples' home for vaudevillians, the senior citizens in the company taught him comedy routines which he incorporated into his nightclub act.

"The trick with doing Snoopy is not to get cutesy. But the irony of my doing the role is that I auditioned 15 times for the producers of 'You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown,' and was never hired. Finally, I called the producers and politely asked them to tear up my resume and photo. I felt I'd had it with auditions."

"So when they called me to come into the San Francisco show, I automatically said no. They misunderstood my feelings and offered me more money. So naturally, I had to say yes."

Trophies Awarded in Scouts' Derby Day

Miss Speciale placed first in the teaching of the handicapped category. She and 299 other winners in the world-wide division will receive one of 120 scholarships offered in that division.

Miss Speciale wants to study at a school for the deaf in England.

Mobley said the two women were among 100 persons interviewed by a panel of district Rotarians at Santa Rosa last weekend.

Cub Pack 248's Pinewood Derby, held at its April meeting, was a huge success, according to Cubmaster Austin Holian, who conducted the races.

The cars of Mike Rusting, T. J. Freitas and Chris Ridgley finished first, second and third respectively in the speed contest.

Chris Graziani's car was voted "most original" and Tony D'Amico's car received the "best looking" trophy.

Other business included the presentation of the following awards: Artist — Tim Abbot, Larry Futrell and Paul Vogel; Citizen — Dwayne Bonilla and Marc Guerrero; Scholar — Dwayne Bonilla; Wolf Badge — Paul Mazoni and Roger Niebolt.

Samuel Chandler

By SAMUEL C. CHANDLER
"Weep with me all you that read
This little story:
And know, for whom a tear you shed
Death's self is sorry."
— Ben Jonson

By violence two North County girls have died — Debbie Burrows in a screaming auto wreck and Denise Lampe at the hand of an unknown murderer.

Debbie Burrows, full of life and nature, skipping instead of walking and singing all the while, was like Terrence's Andria "a surpassing beauty in the bloom of youth."

She loved music and had a vast number of talents, therein to give a world in dire need of them. Following her untimely death in an unnecessary accident, her fellow students at Serramonte High School showed their respect for her by establishing a scholarship fund in her name.

Denise Lampe was just 19 years and a recent graduate from Westmoor High School. At the time of her murder she was working in her first job so she could save money for her education.

Like one of Pindar's characters she gave beauty to sweet Hope. A neighbor described Denise Lampe as a "nice girl, on the quiet side, a credit to her family and her community."

So they have fallen. Violence is defined as: profanation, infringement, outrage, assault; strength or energy actively displayed for destructive action.

VIOLENCE, writes Dr. Peter W. Macky, stems from faulty values — such things as thrill-seeking, the something-for-nothing attitudes, an over large success orientation, love of speed, discrimination, and minds preoccupied with rewards and punishments.

Dr. Macky calls for education to make known the nature and causes of violence. "An enemy," he writes, "cannot be successfully opposed until its ways are understood."

Therefore, he believes that it is necessary to institute education that will pinpoint the chronic causes of United States violence and, if needs be, lead to changes in our social structures.

Dr. Macky warns, as many others have said before him, "If the nation is to endure, then the upward trends of violence (Most notable in crime statistics) must be reversed."

Reversal, he says means changing attitudes and actions that lead to frustration and aggression. "Violence breeds more violence, so the general solution to violence is a refusal to return to it and to respond non-violently instead."

Dr. Macky's book, "Violence, Right Or Wrong," was published in 1973 as an analysis of the conditions that have brought riots and murders and unnecessary deaths to our times. While some reviewers object to Dr. Macky's pointing to the life of Jesus as a model for living for people who would be non-violent, "Violence, Right or Wrong" has been widely read.

So too has Richard Hofstadter and Michael Wallace's "American Violence" been widely read.

Although a documentary history interested in the violent movements that have shaken America, "American Violence" contains an epilogue that suggests that America has not yet breached beyond hope of changing what Abraham Lincoln termed "the increasing disregard for law that pervades the country."

Hofstadter writes in this book that America can expell such conditions — "afterall, most social reforms in the United States have been brought about without violence."

Attack on Firm Called 'Unfair'

City Manager Ed Alario has answered statements by Ron Acosta, a city resident, that the South San Francisco City Council failed to do its homework on the Public Safety Facility.

Acosta, who is suing the city over the method of financing the $12 million police and fire complex, told the council in March to "do your homework."

He said the company that won the bid to build the facility, Harvis Construction of South San Francisco, will extend the original bid price for the complex beyond the time a decision in Acosta's suit is rendered in the Appellate Court. It is expected to take at least a year.

Acosta had implied that there was something wrong if Harvis was willing to do the same project a year and a half from now at the same price it presented when bids were opened last year.

"There is a memorandum... that states that Harvis will extend the original bid price beyond the Appellate Court decision. Now that tells me something is wrong. Are they so affluent right now that they can afford to build something a year and a half or more, maybe later, from now for the same original bid price?"

"This is where I ask you do your homework," Acosta said. "Let's do it the right way or otherwise don't do it at all."

However, in a memo to the City Council last week, Alario clarified the memo to which Acosta had referred.

He said the memo from City Atty. John Noonan to him Jan. 27 indicated that Harvis would extend its bid to the end of the period in which Acosta could file an appeal of the lower court decision. That period ended April 6 and Acosta had already filed on Feb. 27.

Had Acosta not appealed, the original Harvis bid would still have been effective.

There was no mention in the memo of extending the bid price until after the Appellate Court decision, he pointed out.

Alario also explained why Harvis was not increasing its original bid price of $3,126,000 for construction work.

"One of the major goals of Harvis Construction Co. and their unions was to have their employees working and they were willing to accept a much smaller profit than is normal, and possibly no profit," Alario said.

To state or make inference that there was something wrong is unfair to Harvis Construction Co. and their unions since it was quite apparent they had their employees' interest placed above their own," Alario said.

Of the three construction bids submitted, there was a spread of $28,000 on the base bid and $5,766 with the alternate construction work bids, he said.

The non-profit corporation method of financing the Public Safety Facility was upheld in San Mateo County Superior Court in January. Acosta, however, has appealed that decision, contending that it is illegal and will incur an unfair indebtedness for South San Franciscans.

Meanwhile, a city task force has been formed and has been meeting to discuss alternatives to building the facility planned on Chestnut Avenue property.

Director of Public Services Frank Addiego said the task force met three times and has established six alternatives and discussed the ramifications of each.

The options include moving both police and fire departments to the new facility, moving only the police to the new facility, moving the police to the vacant Kaiser Clinic building, or moving police to the vacant Kaiser Hospital building.

Two San Bruno women have been named Rotary Foundation Scholarship winners.

Sue Strong, 20, a Skyline College student, and Anita Speciale, a teacher of the handicapped at Parkside School, will study for one year at schools in Mexico and England, respectively.

Miss Strong placed first among 35 applicants in the undergraduate division, one of four scholarship divisions offered in the North Coast Rotary District, which includes 50 Rotary chapters from Eureka to Menlo Park.

At this time each year, Rotary districts throughout the world offer foundation scholarships for study in foreign countries.

According to Larry Mobley, San Bruno Rotary president, Miss Strong will study public relations and business at the Women's University of Mexico at Tacubaya in the 1977-78 school year.

She eventually wants to combine her public relations and business skills in the field of fashion.

Miss Speciale placed first in the teaching of the handicapped category. She and 299 other winners in the world-wide division will receive one of 120 scholarships offered in that division.

For adults years of scouting as a girl member or internationally as a Girl Guide may be counted. Years of membership within this council and anywhere else in the world are also to be counted.

Most Senior Girl Scouts prefer to receive their 10 year pins (if they have been members since second grade Brownies) from their troops. But seniors who are not affiliated with senior troops are cordially invited to receive their pins from their local association.

Repeal Group Extends Deadline

The Coalition of Concerned Citizens and the California Coordinating Council, sponsors of the statewide campaign to repeal the California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission (Prop. 20), have decided to "go for broke."

They will extend their signature gathering deadline from April 20 to May 20. This waives their right to 30 days for individual signature validation in the event the random sampling at the end of their drive fails to indicate sufficient valid signatures.

Tom Hunter, presiding chairman of the Coalition, stated why this decision has been made.

"The incredible response to our late start on the initiative has encouraged us to continue forward in our all-out drive to gather the required number of signatures."

Hunter urged that anyone who wants to help gather signatures and support the initiative, contact the Coalition of Concerned Citizens, 1519 Rollins Road, Burlingame.

Donations Sought for Pacifica Auction

Members of the Pacifica Youth Advisory Commission will be contacting members of the community during the next week for donations for their third annual Youth-in-Action Auction.

It will be televised on Cable Channel 8 May 19, 20 and 21 and will benefit several of the commission's programs.

During the last two auctions, for example, $4,000 was raised which benefited the Summer Jobs for Youth project through the Community Beautification Program. The commission intends to continue these projects and also hopes to establish a permanent recreation center in Pacifica.

For more information about the auction, contact Dave Matas or Don Cadman, who may be reached at the Pacifica Parks, Beaches & Recreation Department office.

Cabrillo Trustees Election

Cabrillo Unified School District trustees decided at Wednesday's regular board meeting to hold a special election in November to fill the board vacancy created by the resignation of Russell Robinson.

Elected to the board March 4, 1975, Robinson left the post after one year of his four-year term because he has joined a firm headquartered in Hawaii.

"My duties will include extensive travel and part-time residence in Hawaii which will not allow me to properly execute my responsibilities as a board member," Robinson said in his resignation statement.

"I have enjoyed working with my fellow board members, administrators and staff, and regret that my new position will not allow me time to complete the remainder of my term," he concluded.

Because of the length of Robinson's term remaining, trustees decided to hold a special election to replace him rather than make an appointment.

Trustees received a good report from Supt. Dan M. Thompson regarding the district's Early Childhood Education (ECE) program.

Thompson told the trustees that the district ranks in the 89th percentile statewide in terms of quality of education and that as a result, 100 per cent state funding is available for the upcoming year.

The funding will allow expansion of the program from Hatch and Fallone View elementary schools to provide early childhood education programs at El Granada and King's Mountain elementary schools.

The authorization will allow the district to submit a request for funds to begin similar programs at all elementary schools and Thompson was directed to submit the application.

The basic proficiency monitoring system adopted by the board March 5 is currently underway, Thompson reported, with testing to gauge the proficiency of high school students being conducted.

Thompson reported that the testing program will continue through this week, with essay testing conducted Monday, business letter writing Tuesday, job application proficiency testing today and reading measured Thursday.

Thompson reported today that two substitute teachers are evaluating student performance in these areas at district headquarters.

Thompson also said the basic mathematics proficiency test will be administered to all 10th and 11th grade students prior to the end of the current school year.

The trustees also adopted a number of school boundary changes as a result of a review of student population for the upcoming year.

Water Use Suggested

Directors of the North San Mateo County Sanitary District voted Monday to seek legislation which would require the use of secondary treated sewage water for watering golf courses and cemeteries in the North County area.

San Mateo County Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald, who suggested the action, reported that two million of the five million gallons of fresh water being taken from the water table under the Daly City area are being used for irrigation.

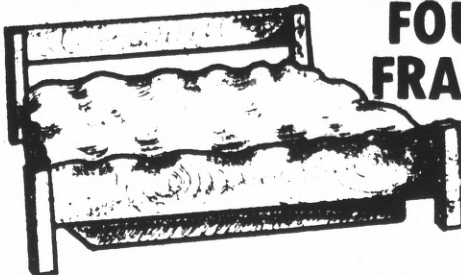

The watertable is dropping at an alarming rate, the supervisor asserted, which could result in the eventual intrusion of salt water.

Daly City uses about three million gallons of water a day from the underground source to supplement the water it purchases from the San Francisco Water Department.

Fitzgerald said full secondary treatment water from sewage sources should be available for irrigation in about 18 months. He stated that, at a cost of $150 an acre foot for the secondary treatment, the water derived is too valuable not to be used in some way.

All-Day Buffet Royal Coach Hotel

A festive dinner is being planned for Mother's Day at Dunfee's Royal Coach Motor Hotel, San Mateo. The all-day buffet will be presented in the Coach & Horses dining room from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. $6.96 for adults, $3.95 for children. Nick Gust's Captain Charles restaurant specials are proving a business boom and rightly should, what with Scampi and Steak, Lobster Steak Brochette, and Stuffed Turbot and Steak priced from $3.95 to $4.50. The regular menu is also available. A champagne Brunch and a special Mother's Day dinner menu will be featured at The Castaway, Coyote Point, on May 9. Brunch will be available from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., dinner service from 4 p.m. Special children's prices. If your sights are set on a trek to the Reno or Tahoe areas this weekend, heed the advertisement in "Bright Lights" which gives information on Barney's coupons. Be sure to enjoy the free bonus gift offered at Barney's. Phil Lehr's fabulous 40-year career in the restaurant industry is profiled in the current issue of San Francisco Business magazine. Phil's two Steakhouses in downtown San Francisco are among the most elegant and successful steak houses in the United States. The Boar's Head (in San Mateo and Daly City), where Prime Rib and Alaskan King Crab are specialties, will be open Mother's Day from 2 to 10 p.m.

LISSOME MISS

Songstress Zella Lehr, a regular on the "Hee Haw" show and as a child made a hit record "Tennessee Wigwag" with Spade Cooley, is entertaining at The Fisherman, in Burlingame.

Champagne With Mother's Day Dinners

A perfect place to toast Mom on Mother's Day is Siroin & Brew Unlimited, in Belmont. Complimentary champagne, all you wish with dinner, will be an extra Mother's Day attraction. Unlimited salad bar, baked potato and all the wine, beer, Cola or sangria you want, regular features at the restaurant, will also be offered. Regular menu prices, with USDA Choice steak dinners starting at $4.49, will apply beginning at 5 p.m. Children's dinners, $1.95. An evening of dining at the House of Troy is something special. This popular San Carlos restaurant will feature their regular menu of complete dinners, with a variety of entrees, and a la carte dishes on Mother's Day, with service from 3 to 10 p.m. No increase in price. There's an intimate cocktail lounge, and ample free parking behind the restaurant. Reservations are now being accepted. Middle Eastern music plays in the background as diners feast on collective cuisine of the Middle East in the new Ali Baba Room at the Costa Brava. In a setting of the desert, you sit on colorful pillowed benches in front of low brass tables and slip helplessly into the hedonism of a Farouk. No elaborate festivities are planned for Mother's Day guests at Chuck's Steak House, San Mateo. The restaurant will open as usual at 4:30 p.m. and serve the regular menu. Steak dinners begin at just $3.95.

Tri-Sounds Sound Off Thru New Year's

Success definitely has its rewards. Just ask members of the Tri-Sounds, the group currently entertaining in the Bayhill Lounge, in San Bruno. By popular demand, the management has inked the group to an extended gig, which takes them through New Year's Eve. Bob Lucas and his trio have again surfaced on the Peninsula nitery circuit. You can hear them perform nightly, Tuesday through Saturday in the Back Door Lounge of the Royal Inn Hotel, in South San Francisco. As a special guest on Friday and Saturday, Dhui Mandino adds his superb conga artistry. Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant, in San Mateo, will dim the lights on Mother's Day, and the management and staff will take the day off. This has been a Licata tradition for many years. Business as usual the following Monday. Vladimir Tupy, general manager of the Roos/Atkins World Travel Bureaus, recently conducted a business luncheon with his Northern California managers in the banquet room at The Shadows, in downtown San Mateo. The Ghirardelli Wine Cellar on Polk Street has revamped its entertainment schedule for May. Lisa Kindred, one of the more exciting new performers, will sing blues, country and folk ballads, accompanied by John Besharian, on Tuesday nights from 8:30 p.m. In honor of Mother's Day, Ray Lim of the House of Lim will have Hawaiian orchids for all the ladies dining at his Redwood City restaurant on Saturday, May 8, and on Mother's Day (May 9). The regular menu of Chinese and American cuisine will be featured on Mother's Day, and service will be from 1 to 9 p.m.

The Chessmen, Lake Tahoe Double-Must

The Chessmen, owned by our dear friends Guy and Gloria Michaels, is one of our favorite restaurant stops on the north shore of Lake Tahoe. The answer to big steak appetites is solved here, as the charcoal broiled mahogany meats are the greatest. The Chessmen, located at Incline Village, is a double-must for dining and winning. The South Tahoe Nugget and Barney's Casino, at South Lake Tahoe, are enjoying not only a "jackpot" business in the gaming areas, but the restaurant sections are bustling with customer action round the clock. Barney's Happy Hour cocktails, served daily from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., are very well received. For an Italian dinner or pizza treat you will long remember, jot down the name of Romano's Italian restaurant. This Rockaway Beach hideaway spot rates top call. Reservations calls for Mother's Day dining at Scotty Campbell's, in Redwood City, are coming in on the double. And it's "Bright Lights" suggestion that you get yours in early, too. "Mom's The Word" at Lehr's Greenhouse, in San Francisco, where Murray Lehr and his dedicated staff are gearing up for the usual big turnout of Bay Area families who will flock to on Mother's Day to feast among the flowers and trees. Ramos Fizz Brunch will be on tap from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., followed by special gourmet Mother's Day dinners from 4 p.m. After enjoying Mother's Day dinner at your favorite restaurant, treat Mom to one of the most exciting evenings of her life by taking her to Finocchio's, in San Francisco, to see the great performances of glamorously gowned female impersonators.

Donation List Filed

San Mateo County Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald's campaign for re-election in the June 8 primary has garnered a total of $13,801 in contributions, according to a campaign contribution statement filed with County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church.

Deadline for the filing of the first contribution statement was Thursday. A second report must be filed by May 27, and a final statement by Aug. 12, in accordance with the Political Reform Act of 1974.

None of the contributions to Fitzgerald's campaign was for more than $200, including one in that amount from Visitation Associates, would-be developer of the proposed Crocker Hills project on San Bruno Mountain. Fitzgerald also received a $5 contribution from fellow board member Edward J. Bacciocco Jr.

San Bruno Councilman Richard Griffith, who is opposing Fitzgerald in the First Supervisorial District race, reported a total of $2,933 in contributions.

In the Fourth Supervisorial District, incumbent William H. Royer has received $9,002 in contributions, while Esther Rascon, a community worker for the Department of Health and Welfare, who is opposing Royer, reported she has personally put $1,169 into the campaign.

McRobert Stewart, a Daly City councilman and one of three candidates seeking the Fifth Supervisorial District post being vacated by Jean Fassler, reported he has placed $5,683 of his own money into his campaign.

Attorney Fred Lyon of Granada has received $5,374 in contributions in his race for the board position, and Charles "Chuck" Carter, a Half Moon Bay restaurant owner, reported $1,542 in contributions.

In the Southern District Municipal Court race where five attorneys are running against incumbent Judge Roy W. Seagraves, former assistant district attorney Robert Bishop reports $3,705 in contributions, with $3,100 of that amount coming out of his own pocket.

Gordon L. Hockhill reported a total of $3,557 in contributions, including a $3,000 loan from himself to his campaign committee.

Harold F. "Bud" Francis reported $2,941 in contributions, V. Gene McDonald a total of $2,541, and Lewis L. Moore a total of $812.

Judge Seagraves' committee reported a total of $1,236, including $231 contributed by the judge. In the other Southern District Municipal Court race, incumbent Judge Thomas M. Smith reported contributions totaling $5,939, including $2,500 by himself and $2,500 from John S. Smith, a San Carlos investor.

San Carlos City Attorney John R. Sherman, who is opposing Smith, reported a $100 contribution and a $400 loan from Dr. Roy Sherman.

St. Clair Blasts Bill To Boost BART Revenue

Former chairman of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors, Bob St. Clair, has lashed out at what he calls "ridiculous and contemptible" legislation pushed through a state assembly subcommittee by Leo McCarthy and John Foran.

The bill, AB 3785, would cost San Mateo County residents more than $1.6 million to pull the financially plagued Bay Area Rapid Transit District out of the red, St. Clair said.

St. Clair, who is running in the special election for the State Senate in the Sixth District May 11, said he cannot believe a bill of this magnitude can get out of a legislative committee with four legislators supposedly representing the area.

"I agree with Senator

Arlen Gregorio and Assemblyman Dixon Arnett that this bill is outrageous," St. Clair said. "What appalls me is the absence of comments by Assemblymen Louis Papan and John Foran. Apparently they were told to keep their mouths shut by their boss, Leo McCarthy, and they are."

"This bill is incredible, but understandable in light of the McCarthy-Papan-Foran alliance," he said, "which is forcing the will of machine politics down the throats of the San Mateo County taxpayers — taxation without representation."

The price tag for BART to be extended into San Mateo County is estimated to be in excess of $1 billion.

Foran's bill created the Golden Gate Bridge District which presently is considering raising the toll on a bridge that has been paid for several times over. "Foran used bad judgment on that bill, St. Clair said. "AB 3785 now under consideration wrecks of the same bad judgment," he said.

"The state created the Metropolitan Transportation Commission to solve transportation problems of a regional nature," St. Clair said. "Yet this vital commission was purposely ignored in consideration of this bill."

St. Clair served on the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors for eight years, twice as chairman.

He was mayor of Daly City and served on the council six years.

County Pact with Nurses

A memorandum of understanding with the 22-member Management Nurses Association was approved this week by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

As with other employee groups, the agreement is for a period of two years and provides for a seven per cent salary increase retroactive to Jan. 1, 1976, and for three cost of living increments during the agreement period.

This week's action leaves only the Organization of Deputy Sheriffs, which has some 400 members, without a current memorandum of understanding with the county.

Arnett Could Break Precedent On BART

Assemblyman Dixon Arnett, R-Redwood City, is hot about the possibility of this county's voters being forced to bail out the financially plagued Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

So hot, in fact, he's mulling an invitation to all San Mateo County and Santa Clara County legislators to attend the Assembly Transportation Committee hearing on the bill which would mandate it, AB 3785.

If Arnett carries out this option, it would shatter long-standing Sacramento precedent whereby legislators traditionally refrain from opposing a bill on the committee floor unless they are a member of the committee.

AB 3785, originally designed to extend the half-cent sales tax allocated to BART in the counties of San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa, was gutted by its author in a subcommittee meeting and amended to require this county to pay $1.65 million annually from gas tax revenues to bail out BART. Santa Clara County's share would be $430,000 if the bill authored by Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond, becomes law.

Contacted by The Times over the weekend, Arnett was candid about the possibility of San Mateo County in voluntarily joining BART.

"We're being raped and we're being asked to sit back and enjoy it," Arnett said.

The three-term legislator reported that passage of AB3785 by the transportation subcommittee came as a "complete surprise."

Arnett related that he and a number of other San Mateo County and Santa Clara County solons received a letter last week from Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, D-San Francisco, which suggested that the two counties contribute to BART's coffers because some county residents use BART.

"The next thing we know, this bill is passed out to the Assembly Transportation Committee, using figures we never heard of," Arnett said.

Arnett blasted the figures cited by Knox, which allege that 13,180 San Mateo County riders and 1,000 Santa Clara County riders use BART each day.

"I'd like to know the manner in which these figures were arrived at," Arnett said, "whether a poll was undertaken, or on what basis Assemblyman Knox has so identified San Mateo County riders."

"This thing was done in a really shabby manner," Arnett charged. "There is no check and balance on the figures they're using."

"I talked with (Assemblyman Victor) Calvo about this rape, and about these figures," Arnett said. "They are claiming 13,000 riders from this county — How do they know that?"

"Furthermore, how have they determined the so-called 'average fare' on which they've based their dollar totals?"

"I think it's unfair and that we're being pinpointed," Arnett charged. "The thing that really bothers me is the manner in which it's being done."

Arnett laid the responsibility for the gutting of the original bill and the substitution of the present bill squarely on McCarthy.

"I can't believe that McCarthy was unaware of all these amendments," Arnett charged. "I rather suspect that on Monday morning, McCarthy and Knox, on one hand, and Calvo, (Assemblyman Lou) Papan and myself will be having a little 'tete-a-tete.' The ironic thing about this is that had Calvo left the room, even to go to the bathroom, this thing would have been passed out of the subcommittee into the transportation committee without our even knowing about it."

Cab Fare Boost Is Sought

The Peninsula Yellow Cab Co. will soon appear before the San Bruno City Council requesting a rate increase, almost double the rate hike it was granted nine months ago.

The cab company, which holds a franchise to provide taxi service in the cities of Millbrae, South San Francisco and San Bruno, will be asking the latter city for a 22.2 per cent rate increase.

Last week the Millbrae City Council introduced an ordinance approving the rate increase as did the South San Francisco City Council earlier this month.

George Corey, legal counsel for the company, has stated that Yellow Cab needs approval of the increase request from all three cities before it can begin charging the new rates.

He explained that the company cabs are used in all three cities interchangeably and all have meters set at the same rate.

According to Millbrae City Administrator Lee Horner, if the present request is granted by all three cities, taxi cab rates will have increased 120 per cent in the past eight years.

The company wants to boost its rates from 90 cents plus 10 cents for each one-ninth mile to $1.10 plus 10 cents for each one-eighth mile.

In February of 1968 the cab company was granted an increase of 20 per cent. 37 months later it received another increase of 16.7 per cent. 32 months later it was granted a 14.3 per cent rate hike and 19 months after that, July of last year, it received a 12.5 per cent hike.

Why are rate hike requests becoming more frequent?

A spokesman for Yellow Cab said the company is increasingly becoming caught in the squeeze between the rising costs of gasoline and car maintenance.

In fact he said, last year the company owners called a meeting of all the cab drivers and explained that the company was falling into the red. All the drivers, the spokesman said, agreed to pay $2 per day to the company for gasoline.

The donations saved the company some $16,000, it was reported.

Horner told his council that Bel-Mateo Enterprises, which provides taxi service to San Mateo and Burlingame, currently charges 80 cents for the first one-eighth mile plus 10 cents for each additional one-eighth mile.

Brothers Arrested

Daly City police and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents moved in on a Carter Street warehouse and arrested two brothers accused of selling stolen goods.

Recovered in the Monday raid at 606 Carter St. were several thousand dollars worth of tires, check writing machines, wallets and numerous other items, police said.

Both the FBI and local police had been watching the business, operated by brothers James E. Ribero, 48, of 650 LaGrande St., San Francisco, and Robert W. Ribero, 43, of 270 Moscow St., San Francisco, for several weeks, it was learned.

Police charge that the brothers were receiving property stolen from interstate transport trucks owned by the Systems 99 Co., located in the Crocker Industrial Park near Brisbane.

SSF Objects to High Administrative Costs

A $169,000 federally funded housing improvement loan program hit a snag this week when the South San Francisco City Council objected to administrative costs of $60,000.

The program — funded by the Housing and Community Development Act — is intended to supply low interest loans to residents of a low- and middle-income and high-minority target area of the city.

The council, however, had trouble accepting staff's plans to dole out $40,000 to the Information and Referral Center and $20,000 to the planning staff to oversee the first year of the program.

The program receives $169,000 a year for three years and is entering its second year of funding. In 1975-76, funds were devoted to establishing the program and surveying needs. Also planned in the funding this year is $45,000 for park improvements.

The target area includes some of the city's oldest homes bordered by Airport Boulevard and Randolph, Maple and Railroad Avenues.

The councilmen were particularly critical of plans to spend $20,000 of the grant to hire a full-time coordinator in the Planning Department. They suggested that the city's Information and Referral Center — already scheduled to handle the counseling of applicants and special classes for homeowners — take on that responsibility.

"I would much rather see the $20,000 ... put back into the housing rehabilitation financing and give it to the people it was intended to," said Councilman Terry Mirri. "It would make a lot more sense."

He said the Information and Referral staff would be "more than understanding."

"I'm afraid we might be developing something in City Hall that we might not need," Mirri said.

The council also suggested that perhaps the banks providing the loans might be able to do some of the administrative work processing the loan applicants.

City Planner David Hale said there has to be someone to administer the program.

One of the coordinator's responsibilities, he said, will be to develop an outreach program so that all those homeowners who need assistance will be aware of the loans available.

"If there is extra time available, there will be plenty to do in my department," said Hale, whose position is being eliminated as of July 1.

The council questioned several other aspects of the program including the limitation of a target area and the city's obligation to cover any loan defaults.

Hale said that HCDA funding requires that the city designate a specific area of the city to receive the block grant.

The loan program also may avoid banks' "redlining" an area of the city — a situation in which a poorer part of a city can't establish credit and therefore continues to be ineligible for loans.

"We hope that by restoring the area, banks will be willing to pump more funds in in the future," Hale said.

City Manager Ed Alario said the city will incur no responsibility for loan defaults should any occur. The third-year funding will serve as a backup fund by the banks guaranteeing 100 percent repayment, he said.

Mayor Leo Padreddi said he wanted assurance that city employees wouldn't end up handling the program.

"A lot of times what I'm afraid of ... is there's always a catch in there," he said. "If we go ahead with this project, I want staff to assure council that this is not going to be a problem."

John Faisarella, a resident, pointed out a problem in the city's plans to perform termite inspections when repairs are made under the loan program.

He said that the inspection reports automatically are sent to state officers and that a homeowner who simply wants a porch railing repaired may be forced to spend hundreds of dollars to repair termite damage.

Pacifica Cable Plans Set

Tele-Communications, Inc. — the operators of Pacifica's cable television station — promised to complete installation of a 20-channel reception throughout the city by May 1.

The Pacifica City Council members, however, will believe it when they see it. TCI has been continually criticized as irresponsible and disorganized by the council, staff and public.

When the council learned recently that TCI might not meet a May 1 deadline to complete the new cable installation, they considered that the last straw.

According to an agreement between TCI and the council made in July, TCI will not receive a rate increase unless the installation is completed by May 1.

Councilman Stan Farber told the council that he and Councilman Mark Savage met with TCI representatives on Saturday and that some problems were ironed out.

"We were assured that the 20-channel system will be completed and tested out by the May 1 deadline," Farber said. The hillside area of Park Pacifica is the last area in the city to be converted.

Farber said that J. C. "Sparkman," TCI general manager from Denver, attended the meeting.

Both the city and TCI officials agreed that the cable company will not receive its rates increase until the entire system has been checked by the city's consultants.

Subscribers' rates increased from $4.75 to $6.25 in September but the additional revenue has been held in escrow pending completion of the new system.

According to the agreement, TCI will receive a second increase to $7.40 a month on May 1 if the system is completed.

Also agreed upon, Farber said, were reimbursements to subscribers for periods of non-reception up to 14 days because of cable inadequacies. Larger reimbursements will be considered by TCI when residents believe they are entitled to them.

May 1 a new station featuring regular full-length movies was to be added to the cable service. The movies will be ones that have not been shown before on television and will be less than three years old. After a two-week complimentary period, the service will cost $8 a month.

TCI also said that a backlog of 500 work orders for cable television reception will be processed immediately and installations will be made.

In addition, TCI agreed that when complaints to City Hall about reception become too frequent, a TCI employee will be placed in City Hall to receive those calls, taking the burden off city staff.

That service was scheduled to start April 27.

A toll-free number to the TCI regional office in Concord will continue to be available, Farber said. TCI will credit its subscribers for any calls misrouted to its San Mateo office.

Farber said plans for TCI to sell the system and leave the city were briefly discussed.

"We were told on no uncertain terms that the system is not for sale," Farber said.

One woman in the audience said if TCI stays in the city, she might as well leave because she hasn't had television reception in days.

May 11 Vote Samples Sent

Sample ballots and voters' pamphlets for the special election May 11 in the Sixth State Senate District are being mailed to voters this week by San Mateo County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church.

The election is being held to fill the vacancy created when George Moscone resigned the office when he was elected mayor of San Francisco.

Nine candidates are seeking the post. If none receives a majority of the votes May 11, the top vote getters of each political party will run-off in the June 8 primary election, Church said.

Council Submerges Boat Launch Idea

The possible study of a boat launching facility in Pacifica was scrapped last week when Councilman Nick Gust voted against his own proposal and then withdrew his suggestion entirely.

Gust for several years has been a proponent of such a facility in the San Pedro area. He asked the City Council on April 26 if he could be the chairman of a committee to investigate the possibility of a launch at San Pedro or any other area in Pacifica.

However, after four persons spoke against the boat launch and Councilman Sidney Lorvan objected to some of Gust's subsequent comments, Gust retreated.

"Anybody who tries to work for the betterment of this city has got to be nuts," Gust said.

The need for a small boat launching facility was recently emphasized in a hearing with the Army Corps of Engineers. The corps was in Pacifica to learn if the city was still interested in a harbor.

During the hearing, several fishermen instead spoke in favor of a small boat launch since there is none from San Francisco to Princeton.

Since the Corps of Engineers could not undertake a study of such a launch, Gust had said the city should look into it.

While the council agreed to let Gust chair a committee, some residents indicated they were less than enthusiastic.

Joseph Penry said that the tides in the San Pedro area fluctuate and such a ramp would have to extend far into the ocean.

He also said that the reefs in the area are very dangerous and that the waves would require the construction of a breakwater.

Fishing season, Penry said, is from May to September in that area because waves are too rough for most boats the remainder of the year.

The cost of building and maintaining a launch for four months doesn't seem to be a smart thing to do," Penry said.

Raymond Fischer said the launch would result in 20 or more boats lined up on city streets on weekends congesting the neighborhood.

It was comments by a resident, John Curtis, that caused Gust to fight back.

Curtis said that the boat launch would deny the San Pedro area — if that were the site selected — the commercial opportunities that might be available on presently vacant land. Instead, parking lots and restrooms would be constructed, he said.

"Isn't anybody ever going to agree on anything,"

Gust asked. "When are we ever going to get on the track to do something to benefit the city?"

He said Curtis only criticizes ideas that are proposed and brings nothing constructive to the council. But Lorvan interjected, asking the mayor for a point of order.

Lorvan said Gust was straying from the subject of the boat launch. After the two councilmen tried getting their points across at the same time, Mayor Janice Fulford agreed with Lorvan.

When she asked for a vote on setting up the committee, Lorvan and, surprisingly, Gust both voted no.

Lorvan said he was not objecting to the boat launch but to the lack of discussion before the vote.

Gust asked that the entire vote be rescinded and scratched from the record even though the majority of the council favored the study. The council unanimously agreed.

Planning Commissioner Jim Harrison, who had spoken in favor of the project, said it was a constructive idea and that it must have been the late hour that caused the councilmen's action.

"You got a little bit of personalities involved and then you chucked the whole thing," Harrison said.

San Bruno to Repair Swim Pool

San Bruno is going to spend $15,000 next month to repair the city's swimming pool.

The heating system and the pump must be replaced and the pool needs to be resurfaced, according to Mike Doerner of the city's parks and recreation department.

"The surface of that pool is so bad it's like walking on sandpaper," Doerner said.

Doerner said the heating system and pump are 15 years old, and that he expects work on the pool to be completed in time to open the pool on Memorial Day.

Man Held In Slaying Of Worker

Daly City police arrested a San Francisco man Thursday morning and reported they have connected him to the slaying of Lee Frey, a San Francisco Municipal Railway worker who was found shot to death last month near Pacific

Timothy Francis O'Neil, 20, a roofing contractor, was arrested on an armed robbery warrant, but police said investigation disclosed that he was allegedly involved in Frey's death.

Police said O'Neil would be arraigned this morning on charges of robbing United Car Rental and Sales in Daly City and also the murder charge.

He also will be arraigned on a kidnapping charge stemming from the alleged armed robbery and murder.

Police believe that O'Neil robbed United Car Rental and Sales and locked the company's owner, Bob Kuenzi, and an unnamed customer in a restroom near the business.

Police also said they were able to establish that O'Neil was associated with James Townsend and Clive Oakley, two men who attempted to rob the Daly City Gun Store early this month.

Hurt

Strong gusting winds slammed a hang glider enthusiast into a cliff face near Thornton Beach Thursday, minutes after he jumped from a high perch at Fort Funston in San Francisco.

The man reportedly broke his back in the crash. He was rescued by firemen from Daly City and San Francisco.

Adrian Florneri, 33, of Pittsburgh, was stuck about 5:45 p.m. on a narrow ledge midway up a 150-foot-high cliff above the Pacific Ocean.

Meet 4 Pairs of "Road Scholars" Who are looking for trouble. With our blessing.

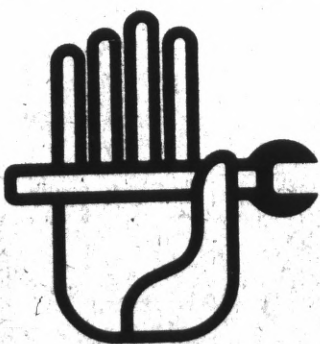

Dave Tuhtan and John Lutkenhouse, students in the auto mechanics class at Capuchino High School; James Markman and Kyle Spring, students in the auto mechanics class at San Mateo High School; David Sapio and Keven Cook, students in the auto mechanics class at Aragon High School, AND Dave Barriger and Mark Elckinoff, students in the auto mechanics class at Mills High School have been selected by their instructor to represent their schools in the Plymouth Trouble-Shooting Contest May 6, 1976, at Washington High School, 38442 Fremont Blvd., Fremont, California.

We congratulate them, and we are happy to sponsor them in this program.

The trouble they are looking for will be beneath the hood of a car. That's what Trouble Shooting is all about — students using their classroom knowledge to find out what's wrong with a car and to fix it quickly and properly.

If they win at Fremont, they will receive all expense-paid trips to Chicago next June to compete against students from all 50 states in the National Trouble Shooting finals.

Good luck, students and instructors.

SSF Public Safety Overtime Defended

South San Francisco's fire and police chiefs last week defended their requests for nearly $370,000 in overtime pay in the 1976-77 budget.

The City Council — determined to cut back on those requests or eliminate them entirely — decided to take action after the total budget proposal is presented on May 21.

The Police Department has requested $248,860 and the Fire Department is seeking $120,080.

The Public Services Department has requested $7,490 for overtime costs. The total request from all city departments is $384,810.

of the city's projected $8 million budget.

The overtime was one item that caught the council's attention in a review of the department budget requests last week.

The council was particularly concerned about cutting down on overtime since the department requests are $2.6 million more than the city's projected revenue for next year.

Fire Chief Lawrence Toellner Wednesday night said his department's overtime request is a result of a City Council minimum manning requirement. The council has said that the Fire Department will have at least 21 firefighters on duty at all times.

The chief said that if the council eliminates that requirement, as he recommends, overtime costs would be virtually eliminated.

"We would work with what we have," Toellner said. "I suggest we do away with the 21-man minimum."

Toellner said the elimination of minimum manning would not be detrimental to the city's fire service. Mutual aid provided by fire departments throughout the county is available whenever the city's crews need assistance, he said.

Toellner explained that any time the number of on-duty firefighters drops below 21, off-duty firefighters must be called in to meet the minimum manning requirement.

Twenty-four men are assigned to a shift. However, there are two men on vacation at all times throughout the year. If one man is sick, the department is at the bare minimum allowed by the council.

The minimum manning, he said, was raised from 19 to 21 when the paramedic force was implemented in 1975. The paramedic van requires at least two personnel to operate.

Toellner said rather than eliminate minimum manning, the council could provide six more firefighters at a cost of $117,937 in lieu of overtime. The figure he said, is based on current salaries.

Other alternatives are eliminating the paramedics to drop minimum manning to 19 or eliminating minimum manning entirely as he has requested.

Toellner and City Manager Ed Alario said they weren't certain if such an adjustment would have to be negotiated with the firefighters' union.

"It's a debatable point," Alario said. "We here have always considered it at the manager's prerogative."

MANAGER

John Root, assistant manager of the California Beef Council, has been appointed manager of the Cow Palace in Daly City. It was announced recently. He is a San Bruno resident. Root served as operations officer for the Cow Palace for two years prior to joining the beef council.

Skyline Offers Many Classes

Summer session class schedules and selections for Skyline College have been mailed to San Mateo County residents and are available at the college, 3300 College Drive, San Bruno.

Deadline for registration by mail for the summer session is May 28. Late registration will take place Wednesday, June 9 and Thursday, June 10 and during the first week of classes, which begin Monday, June 21.

The classes are open to any high school graduate residing in the county, any resident 18 years of age or older, or anyone between the ages 16 and 18 who holds a certificate of proficiency.

Magnolia Center's Usefulness Debated

The future of vacant Magnolia Center — a building often pointed to as a possibility for additional city office and recreational space — will rest in the hands of the South San Francisco City Council.

The Parks and Recreation Commission recently discussed a subcommittee report on potential uses of the building at 601 Grand Ave.

The commission, however, did not act on the report which indicated the cost would be $998,000 to make the center usable.

Instead, the commission is passing the report on to the City Council to consider at its May 5 meeting.

The costs of bringing the building built in designed in 1927 up to current fire and building codes might make any use of the building unrealistic, the commission noted.

"Everybody recognizes that there are no funds," said Dick Milkovich, director of parks and recreation.

The council just last week diverted funds from its capital improvements budget to help balance its general operating budget. Funds to upgrade Magnolia Center must come from the capital improvements budget, Milkovich also said that any further studies, if the council is interested in using the building, will be expensive.

Magnolia Center is part of the now abandoned two-story Magnolia School.

The center has been vacant since 1974, when the Parks and Recreation Department moved into a converted bowling alley at 3 Linden Ave.

Magnolia Center was closed because of Fire Department and building code violations.

The city pays $2,606 a month in rent for parks and recreation offices, the senior citizens building at 230 and 232 Grand Ave., and the recreational classroom space at 409 Grand Ave.

All three rental agreements expire in March 1977, and the rents are expected to increase at that time.

The commission and council have been asking the staff if there is some way to house under one roof some of the operations scattered throughout the city. The subcommittee was charged with determining if Magnolia Center is a potential site.

The subcommittee, chaired by William Craib, recommended that a complete engineering and financial study, including a master plan for alternative uses of the center, be prepared.

The members said it should include details on:

- Remodeling the auditorium as a civic cultural arts center. It also could be the permanent site for City Council, commission and board meetings now held in the basement of West Orange Avenue Library, and for local groups to stage musical and dramatic productions.

- Remodeling the adjacent school building into 9,000 square feet of office space and 9,000 square feet of recreation space, alleviating the need to rent property for the Parks and Recreation Department, the Senior Citizens Club and other recreational facilities.

- Working out an agreement with the South San Francisco Unified School District for joint uses of portable buildings that could be located on the site. It would include grading and paving the area for additional parking.

The committee — basing its recommendations on a 1975 report by Civil Engineer August Waegemann — estimated costs at $327,200 for remodeling the auditorium, $482,000 to remodel the school building, and $179,600 for the use of portables and to develop a parking area.

The subcommittee also asked that the city negotiate with the school district to lease a school site for additional recreation space, should the school board decide to close a school in the near future.

In an enrollment projection report for the school district in 1974, Dr. Edward H. LaFranchi of University of Southern California pointed out that "by 1978-79, two elementary schools may well be closed, with a resulting average size for the 12 remaining schools of 529."

Roberta Teglia, a committee member, said the committee did not consider alternative sites for a community center because the committee did not want to call for a bond election or other taxing measure to support such an endeavor.

"We're not even sure there is money to do anything with the existing site," she said.

Brisbane City Attorney Quits

Attorney David Friedenberg has resigned his post as City Attorney of Brisbane, effective immediately, it has been learned.

Friedenberg gave no reason for his sudden departure from the city after serving in that position for some eight years.

County Postpones Budget Hearings

County Manager M. D. Tarshes' proposal to postpone hearings on the proposed 1976-77 San Mateo County budget for about one month was approved unanimously last week by the Board of Supervisors.

"It will give us a better handle on the financial situation," Tarshes told the board.

Furthermore, the county manager said, it will permit his office and county department heads to take a second look at departmental budget requests in view of the gloomy financial outlook this coming fiscal year.

Tarshes already had warned the board that it may be necessary to raise an additional $10 million next year from property taxes.

In making his recommendation to begin budget hearings in July rather than June, Tarshes said the procedure would allow determination of the final fund balance for this fiscal year, would provide information as to what will be forthcoming in state revenue and would determine the impact of Medi-Cal and welfare appropriations based on assessed valuation.

Supervisor John M. Ward said the hearings also would provide the board an opportunity to review any recommendations of the County Grand Jury concerning county governmental operations. The grand jury's final report does not come out until June 30.

Clifford Boxley, director of the PRODE Community Center in Redwood City, expressed concern that if there is a 30-day delay between the end of the current fiscal year and the adoption of a new budget there could be a problem of continuing financing of county recommended budget for not later than July 6 and commencement of budget hearings no later than July 22.

Libraries Provide Computer Link

Senior citizens and others who wish to know what agencies and services are available are utilizing a new service now available at libraries throughout San Mateo County.

The county's librarians are the first in the nation to use an on-line computerized file, in English or Spanish giving basic information on agencies and services available here.

Child care, health services, family counseling, and free physical examinations for senior citizens are among the services offered.

The Peninsula Library System's Computerized Information Project has built a file describing more than 550 human services stored in a computer at Stanford University.
